Thomas Brassey arrives in Chester

It was with great excitement and much bated breath that members of the TBS committee watched the fulfilment of a long held dream today. The statue of Thomas Brassey arrived outside Chester Station on a very long low loader and was carefully craned into place ready for the Grand Unveiling on Wednesday, 28 May by the Duke of Gloucester.

Tidying up work will be done tomorrow and then the whole area will be “spring cleaned” (we are told), in readiness for the great day!
